Recent boycotting situation and new description of agricultural strategies

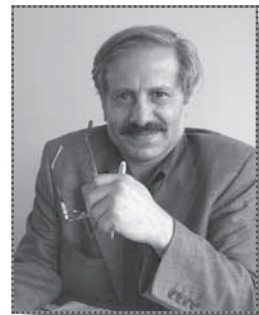

Though many political decisionmakers have no urge towards boycotts and their effects on the very large economies and specially on agricultural sectors; but it's not logically impossible to react with agricultural challenges in our country.

Even if it's impossible to import the needed scale of maize, soybean meal, drug's raw materials, vaccines adequate and agricultural machineries which never produce in our country, what will be happened? Which countries can provide our needs? What is the role of public and private sectors if our agricultural structures and also our national productivities will be damaged?

All of above questions should be answered by our public sectors.

As before, The writer of this article believes that, besides the existed boycotting situation, by providing facilities to our manufactures and producers, we will be able to avoid any negative effects on quality and quantity of our production.

It's necessary that agricultural organization has good cooperation with farmers, investors and specialists.
