

Not matching view points of state and majlis on agricultural issues

In this article, “Damparvaran” at first has described the responsibilities of state and majlis, then has referred to duties of majlis on interpellating the government because of defending the people`s right.

Unfortunately there are many differences between majlis representatives and statemen on economical agriculture, productivity and commercial.

From one side, majlis considers religious persuasion towards fundamentals of agriculture; while form other side the 11th state has attitude of: economical productivity, utility of newest technologies, relationship with other countries, increasing of profatibility.

So, it`s obvious these two different viewpoints will cause some difficulties in our agricultural sectors
